

NEW ABSTRACT

A robotic web browser is capable of rendering high level program instructions received via an electronic network such as the Internet. Upon rendering the downloaded instructions, the robotic web browser performs three-dimensional movements and plays back video and audio streams.